My Blog is 11 Years Old :)

written by Mert SARICA | 19 November 2020

It has been a year since I wrote my blog post “Summary of the Decade“, and my blog, which said hello to the world on November 19, 2009, has now completed its 11th year with the fast-passing time.

In recent years, due to changes in my career, my focus has shifted, my workload and mental fatigue have increased, and unfortunately, I have been able to spend less time on cybersecurity research. Therefore, I would like to sincerely share with all my readers that I will now only be able to publish blog posts every two months, depending on the current circumstances.

I am grateful to all my readers who have always kept my motivation high and encouraged me to write with their positive feedback and constructive criticism.

Knowledge is power and grows as it is shared.